

Cable tray folding price

AI Overview

Folding cable trays for desks typically range from $20 to $80, depending on size, material, and brand. Folding cable trays are designed to organize and manage cables efficiently while allowing flexibility in use. For example, desk-mounted foldable trays made of powder-coated steel can fold out on both sides to hold power strips, cables, and small devices, providing a neat and accessible workspace. These are generally priced between $20 and $50 for standard desktop models. For larger or industrial folding cable trays, which may be made of steel, aluminum, or plastic and used in commercial or industrial settings, prices can vary more widely. Factors affecting cost include tray length, width, load capacity, and material. Typical ranges for these types of trays are $50 to $150 or more per tray, depending on specifications and supplier. When purchasing, consider:

- Material: Steel trays are durable and suitable for heavy cables, while plastic trays are lighter and corrosion-resistant.
- Size and Load Capacity: Ensure the tray can accommodate the number and type of cables you plan to organize.
- Installation: Some foldable trays are designed for easy desk mounting, while industrial trays may require brackets or supports.
- Supplier Options: Online suppliers like McMaster-Carr, RS Components, and specialized office suppliers offer a variety of foldable and flexible cable trays with same-day or next-day delivery.

Overall, desk foldable trays are more affordable, while industrial folding cable trays are priced higher due to size, material, and load-bearing requirements.
