

Price of Factory Distribution Box Circuit

AI Overview

Factory distribution box circuits typically range from $3.75 for basic low-voltage units to several hundred dollars for industrial or customized panels.

Price Ranges

- Basic residential or small commercial units: Low-voltage, single-phase distribution boxes with a few circuit breakers can start at approximately $3.75 per unit, especially for bulk or wholesale orders.
- Industrial or commercial three-phase units: Larger distribution boxes with multiple circuits, higher amperage, and advanced features such as MCBs, power meters, or smart monitoring can cost from $100 to several hundred dollars, depending on specifications and customization.
- Customized or OEM factory units: Prices vary based on material (steel or aluminum), IP rating for waterproofing, busbar configuration, and branding. Bulk orders often reduce per-unit costs, while specialized enclosures or high-protection ratings increase the price.

Factors Affecting Cost

- Voltage and Phase: Single-phase boxes are cheaper than three-phase industrial units.
- Number of Circuits: More circuits require larger panels and more components, increasing cost.
- Material: Steel boxes are sturdy and corrosion-resistant, while aluminum boxes are lightweight and easier to install.
- Protection Features: Waterproof or IP-rated enclosures, MCB integration, and overload protection add to the price.
- Customization: OEM branding, logo embossing, and tailored layouts can increase costs but are available from most factory suppliers.
- Additional Features: Smart monitoring, digital displays, and energy management systems can significantly raise the price for commercial and industrial applications.

Applications

- Residential: Single-phase MCB panels for home circuits.
- Commercial: Multi-circuit panels for offices, retail, and HVAC systems.
- Industrial: High-capacity three-phase panels for factories, power plants, and mining operations, often with motor control and energy monitoring.
