

Price of Power Distribution Box Labels

AI Overview

Factory power distribution box labels typically range from $10 to $50 per set, depending on material, customization, and quantity.

Overview of Label OptionsElectrical panel labels are available in various formats, including vinyl stickers, adhesive decals, and metalized or laminated finishes. Standard sets for home or office use often include up to 170 decals for circuit breakers and fuse panels, priced around $10–$20 per set on platforms like Amazon . These labels are designed for durability, with strong adhesive and non-tearable vinyl suitable for indoor use.

Custom and Industrial LabelsFor industrial or commercial applications, companies like Brady offer customizable panel identification labels with glossy, matte, or metalized finishes. Prices for these labels vary based on size, material, and customization, including pre-printed numbers, symbols, or company logos . Custom orders may cost more, typically $20–$50 per set, depending on the complexity and quantity.

Factors Affecting PriceMaterial: Vinyl is common for standard panels, while metalized or laminated labels are more expensive.Quantity: Bulk orders reduce per-unit cost.Customization: Custom text, logos, or color coding increases price.Compliance: Labels meeting electrical safety standards or industrial specifications may carry a premium.

Purchasing OptionsOnline Retailers: Amazon and similar platforms offer ready-made sets for residential and light commercial use .Industrial Suppliers: Brady and other manufacturers provide custom label solutions for large-scale or factory applications .Wholesale Orders: For large distribution box projects, contacting manufacturers directly can yield volume discounts and tailored label solutions.

In summary, standard factory labels for distribution boxes start around $10 per set, while custom or industrial-grade labels can reach $50 or more, depending on material, customization, and order size .
