

Price quote for ladder-type cable trays

AI Overview

Ladder-type cable trays typically range from ₹44 per piece for small coupler plates to several hundred dollars per 2.4–2.5 meter section, depending on material, size, and accessories. Price Ranges and Materials Hot-dip galvanized steel trays are commonly priced per standard length of 2.4–2.5 meters, with prices varying by width, height, and load capacity. For example, coupler plates for 25–50 mm height trays cost around ₹44 per piece, while larger 75–100 mm trays cost ₹67 per piece in India (ex-Mumbai) with GST extra and minimum order quantities applied. Aluminum ladder trays are lightweight, corrosion-resistant, and often used in industrial or overhead installations. Prices in the U.S. market for straight sections and fittings can range from $50 to $200 per 2–2.5 meter section, depending on dimensions and load rating. Factors Affecting Cost Material: Steel (galvanized or stainless) is generally less expensive than aluminum but heavier. Dimensions: Width, side rail height, and rung spacing influence price. Standard rung intervals are typically 250 mm. Load Capacity: Trays designed for heavy-duty cables or long spans cost more. Fittings and Accessories: Elbows, tees, splices, covers, and supports are priced per piece and add to the total system cost. Coatings and Treatments: Corrosion-resistant coatings or powder coatings increase durability and cost. Installation and Long-Term Value Ladder-type trays provide excellent ventilation, easy cable access, and flexibility for future modifications, which can reduce maintenance costs and installation time. Modular designs allow for expansion without replacing the entire system, justifying higher initial investment. Typical Applications These trays are widely used in commercial, industrial, and residential buildings, including data centers, hospitals, manufacturing facilities, and power plants. Their open ladder design supports multiple cable types, prevents overheating, and simplifies maintenance. In summary, pricing varies significantly based on material, size, and accessories, with small coupler plates star...
