

Serbian fiber optic cable sales company

AI Overview

Serbia hosts several companies specializing in fiber optic cables, including Conexio, Frigate, Telegradnja, and FIBRAIN projects. Key Companies Conexio is a Serbian telecommunications company with over 20 years of experience in the region. Their backbone network in Serbia spans 860 km along major highways, featuring G.655E fiber installed in PEHD pipes and 15 ILA sites, providing low latency and high-speed connectivity. Frigate is a manufacturer and supplier of fiber optic cables in Serbia, offering products designed for long-distance stability, minimal signal attenuation, and reliable high-speed communication. Telegradnja Ltd focuses on consulting, designing, constructing, and maintaining telecommunication infrastructure. They sell GPON active and passive equipment and provide optical fiber measurement services using OTDR, along with network installation and investment construction services across Serbia. FIBRAIN has been involved in Serbian projects such as Skyline Belgrade, supplying fiber optic cables, client sockets, patch panels, and patch cables. This project highlights international collaboration in the Serbian fiber optic sector. B2B Marketplaces For broader supplier options, Europages lists multiple Serbian companies offering fiber optic cables, allowing direct contact with wholesalers and manufacturers for procurement purposes. Summary Serbia's fiber optic market includes both local manufacturers and international collaborations, providing a range of products and services from cable supply to full network installation and maintenance. Companies like Conexio and Telegradnja offer infrastructure and consulting services, while Frigate and FIBRAIN focus on high-quality cable products and project-specific solutions.
